

To Whom It May Concern,

I am scripting this cover letter in regards to the XYZ position. XYZ industry is something I am very passionate about. I am excited to have to opportunity to explore, learn, and continue to grow in an environment that clearly produces exemplary products in the field. I particularly enjoy XYZ, for A, B, and C reasons. In XYZ's field, I am excited about [INSERT FIELD RELATIVE EXCITEMENT HERE]. Based on my full stack development skills and creative nature, I could be a great asset to your team and company.

My desire to become a developer has been growing in my mind for some time. After 10 years in the service industry, I decided it was time for a change. Over a decade of serving drinks, transporting clients and goods, I developed a keen sense of customer service. I have honed these skills to near perfection by striving to improve my communication skills on a persistent basis. With my new assets as a developer I am excited to bring both my superior customer service skills and programming knowledge to XYZ company.

In January of 2018, I began what I soon learned would be a lifetime path of learning in the development world. I quickly became enamored with the learning, problem solving, and exploration of programming. I found C# and .NET to be very intuitive both in learning and in implementation. I also became fascinated with JavaScript, and its ability to simply deliver everything from API calls to simple games. At my internship with COMPANY ZYX, I found myself implementing a lot of the skills during my time at Epicodus, as well as learning many new diverse skills that I am excited to commit to future projects.

With my great customer service skills and my recently acquired passion for programming, I know that I can be a valuable asset to your company. I strongly believe we would both benefit from the opportunity to learn and grow with each other. I look forward to hearing from you.

Thanks,

John C. Mayer
